NEW Apprenticeship
Program for Plastic Process
Technicians

Enrolling NOW,
Funding Available!

The Keystone Community Education Council (KCEC) has teamed up with the American Injection
Molding (AIM) Institute and Clarion
University to help bridge the skills gap in Northwestern Pennsylvania's manufacturing workforce.

A collaboration of twelve plastic manufacturers in our region
pioneered this unique program.

The local plastics industry has been asking for a program like this for years. This combination of hands-on experience and classroom learning is tailored to the exact needs of our region's injection molders.

BENEFITS

- ❖ Funding available for nearly two-thirds of the program cost.
- ❖ Employees chosen for training feel valued, building loyalty to your company.
- ❖ Develops the next generation of leaders within your company.
- ❖ Apprentices can earn PA-State registered, industry-specific certifications and are eligible to earn credits towards an associates degree of Applied Science in Industrial Technology at Clarion University.
- ❖ Apprenticeships narrow the skills gap and help retain institutional knowledge in preparation for a retiring workforce.
